

October 18, 2004

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in response to information I received suggesting that current FM translator stations may be replaced by "new" LPFM stations. While I'm not concerned about the way information is transmitted, I am very interested in maintaining my ability to listen to KLOVE on a local radio station.

I have been listening to KLOVE for approximately two years and would like to register my comments concerning the importance of this station in my life and community. KLOVE is a permanent fixture on my radio station. I believe that has enhanced my potential for personal growth. The songs are very strongly Biblical in nature, which supports my other Bible study endeavors. In addition to listening myself, it is great to hear my kids singing the songs. With so many songs out that are inappropriate for children, KLOVE is a station I don't have to worry about.

In addition to those in my household, I have talked to a host of others in our community who listen to KLOVE. In my circle of support, it is the primary station listened to. I believe that this is possible because of the wholesome messages and songs heard here.

Please consider my comments as well as others that say that KLOVE is priceless to them. I urge you to find a way to let all stations co-exist.

Sincerely,

Jill Damm